A public lecture on "Man and his Environment" by Dr. Leslie F. Nims of the Atomic Energy Commission Brookhaven Laboratory, a symposium on "The Air Pollution Problem in Montana" and a discussion of "Radiation Surveillance in Montana" will highlight the 23rd annual meeting of the Montana Academy of Sciences in Missoula this weekend.

The academy and the Montana Psychological Association will meet concurrently at Montana State University Friday and Saturday, according to Dr. LeRoy H. Harvey, professor of botany at MSU and executive secretary of the academy.

The program includes presentation of 74 scientific papers, Dr. Harvey said. The assembly will also hear reports on student research projects by Linda Bush, Missoula County High School junior, a grand-prize winner in the Montana Science Fair in April, and by Catherine Bownes and Dorothy White, Anaconda Central High School students who were 1962 winners of research awards from the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Academy officers planning the program include Dr. Richard E. Juday, MSU, president-elect; David Tackle, U. S. Forest Service Research Center, Bozeman, president; John H. Rumely, Montana State College, past president, and members-at-large Adam J. Smith, Montana School of Mines; John W. Hurst, MSC, and Charles Buck, Rocky Mountain College.

Section vice presidents who will preside at academy section meetings are John J. Taylor, MSU, Biological Sciences I; James R. Habeck, MSU, Biological Sciences II; Oliver Peterson, Eastern Montana College, Mathematics-Statistics; Rod J. O'Connor, MSC, Physical Sciences; A'Delbert Samson, MSC, Social Sciences, and Norman Jacobson, Powell County High School, Teaching of Sciences.
