Montana State University law students will honor the state's jurists at Montana Judges Day in conjunction with the traditional Barristers Ball Saturday, according to co-chairmen of the special program, Wade Farlin, Anaconda, and Gene Phillips, Roundup.

Justices of the Montana Supreme Court, federal district judges and state district judges have been invited to take part in the program, which will get under way with a noon luncheon at Ming's restaurant. They will be joined by lawyers from throughout the state, including members of the Law School Board of Visitors.

William Coldiron, Butte, president of the Montana Bar Association, will be the speaker at Barristers Ball, which will begin about 6 p. m. at the Eagles Hall.

The dinner dance will also feature presentation of awards to outstanding law students.

A session focusing on revision in Montana law is scheduled from 2 to 4 p. m. Saturday at the Law School. Faculty members who have been serving with other Montana lawyers on committees concerned with these changes will participate. Prof. David R. Mason will discuss changes in appellate practice, and Profs. Edwin W. Briggs and Larry M. Elison will deal with revisions of the Montana criminal code. Dean Robert E. Sullivan will talk about the curriculum and other aspects of the Law School.
