FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Sixteen tax specialists, including attorneys, certified public accountants and chartered life underwriters will address the Institute on Taxation and Estate Planning to be conducted by the Montana State University Law School Dec. 3, 4 and 5, Dean Robert E. Sullivan announced.

Prof. Lester R. Rusoff of the law faculty is director of the institute for lawyers, accountants, insurance underwriters and trust officers.

The program covering various aspects of taxation and estate planning was drawn up by Prof. Rusoff and an advisory committee consisting of attorneys Joseph G. Mudd of Great Falls, Jack W. Burnett of Billings and George D. Goodrich of Missoula; trust officers Livingston Rodgers of Great Falls and Dan Dykstra of Helena; chartered life underwriters LaVerne E. Sebens of Great Falls, Austin Redding of Butte and Howard F. Hoene of Billings, and certified public accountants John N. Newland of Butte, Dale U. Fuehrer of Helena and Duane E. Smith of Billings.

The institute director urges persons planning to attend to register in advance. The registration fee will be refunded to anyone who registers in advance and finds he is unable to attend, Rusoff said.
