She went to sleep and grew up and looked at her body and said This was just a reflection...

This was just
She went to sleep

Lili,
she said

Lilies and a basket
Of protection
This call a place
she stopped
This could be she a voice, she, a voiced

Lili?
Some recognition
Some recollection Take

My,
she said,

The gardener by a white picket
she fenced
She was fenced

in, she said and behind her clover, take this and bouquets and baskets Bushels counted on old parchment
Things behind glass under tape In this museum a collection Egyptian
artifacts, artifactual, anti-or artiface, she claims, signs labor exchange a ticker-tape-like recollection dug up They were unearthed
In a cave
centuries
a measured
existence Roles, models, modular re-connection She fences
the garden Pricks
her thumb forefinger this rose
those lines
accounting for
To count for or forward and growling in this dark
she says, nightness,
palms to the surface
so that guard must (Is his back turned Is he turned back round Is he watching
To see, to look, to notice) warn her — Lili?
