12 UM EXTENSION
COURSES OFFERED
WINTER QUARTER

MISSOULA, Mont.---

The University of Montana Extension Division will offer 12 courses in several different subjects at night during the winter quarter starting next week.

Registration for one or more of the courses will be at the first class meeting for each course on Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday nights (Jan. 6-8). If there are not enough registrants in a course to support instruction costs, then that course won't be offered.

Mary Margaret Courtney, Extension Division supervisor, said the fee for each of the courses will be $16 per credit. Regular University faculty members will be in charge of the classes.

Additional information about any of the courses may be obtained by phoning the Extension Division office on campus, 243-5073, or those interested may stop at the office, 720 E. Beckwith Ave.

A list of the courses with instructors' names, and the days and places of the class sessions follow. Courses available for graduate credit are designated with a (G).
