CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this study was to investigate empirically some aspects of Freud's theory of psychosexual development. Specifically, an attempt was made to investigate age and sex differences in reported preference or lack of preference for either parent.

Oedipus-Complex

According to Freud, there are three stages in the child's development which influence his preference for a parent. These stages are explained in his theory of Oedipus-complex.

The Oedipus-complex is the sexual attachment of a child to the opposite-sex parent, together with a negative attitude toward the parent of the same sex. According to Freud, this attachment has its origin in the earliest years of childhood.

From the time of birth until the fourth or fifth year when object-choice is made, a child receives his sexual gratification from his erotogenic zones. The main three zones which produce sexual gratification are oral, anal, and genital (17, p. 1). Freud describes the concept of object-choice as a selection of an object of love by the child (17, p. 38).

Due to the fact that stimulation of the erotogenic zones is usually accomplished by the mother, a child develops a sexual attachment (object-choice) toward its mother. Sears says:

From the first the child is treated to much affection and erogenous stimulation by the mother, and hence, he gradually develops a well-organized sexual attachment to her. By the age of five, this is strongly developed (17, p. 37).

It is during this period of association of erogenous gratification with the mother that a child prefers his mother. The process of the formation of this preference is described by Freud as follows:

The processes of finding the object (mother) are rather involved and have as yet had no comprehensive exposition. For our purpose, let us emphasize the fact that when the process has come to a temporary cessation in the childhood years, before the latent period, the object it has found is seen to be practically identical with the first object derived from its relation to the object of the oral pleasure impulse. It is, if not the mother's breast, the mother herself (5, p. 385).

Thence, according to Freud, the first love-object of both boys and girls is the mother, since the pleasurable 1Erotogenic zones have been defined by Freud as those parts of one's body which when stimulated produce pleasurable sensations which are sexual in nature (5, p. 271).

sensations of the erotogenic zones are associated with the mother. Freud stated:

The first object-cathexes indeed follow the lines of the satisfaction of the great and simple needs of life, and the circumstances in which the child is nursed are the same for both sexes (6, p. 162).

In this way, Freud accounts for the first five years of sexual development of both sexes. After the age of five, the development of boys takes on a different direction from that of girls. It is at this point that the parental preference of boys and girls must be considered separately.

Boys. The first five years of his life are known as the Oedipal phase and a boy would be expected to have a more favorable attitude toward his mother. Approximately at the age of five a boy's genital organ takes preference over other erotogenous zones. Specifically, when a boy's penis takes the leading part in his sexual development, the boy is said to be in the phallic phase (7, p. 270).

As Freud asserted:

The boy's Oedipus-complex, in which he desires his mother, and wants to get rid of his father as a rival, develops naturally out of the phase of phallic sexuality (4, p. 176).

The phallic phase is characterized by the boy's desire to have a sexual intercourse with his mother (6, p. 122). Up to the age of five, the boy's attachment to his mother is erotogenic. This preference for his mother is discontinued at six to eight years (17, p. 38). It is broken due to the threats of castration (6, p. 176).\(^2\) The castration anxiety forces him to give up this attitude and the latency period begins. During this period, a boy does not favor either parent. Freud considers this as a very natural occurrence, as indicated by his following statement:

Another view would put it that the Oedipus-complex must come to an end because the time has come for its dissolution, just as the milk teeth fall out when the permanent ones begin to press forward (7, p. 269).

At the end of the latency period, a boy enters the puberty phase where he makes a choice of new love-objects (17, p. 38).

Girls. The girl's development is quite different from that of the boys. During the first five years of her life, the mother is also preferred, and this period is known as the pre-Oedipal stage of her development. Freud affirmed that this pre-Oedipal preference for the mother lasts beyond the fourth year (6, p. 163).

The pre-Oedipal stage is followed by the Oedipal stage, during which she favors her father. Whereas, the castration complex causes a boy to give up his Oedipal

\(^2\)According to Freud: "In the boy the castration complex is formed after he has learnt from the sight of the female genitals that the sexual organ which he prises so highly is not a necessary part of every human body. He remembers then the threats which he has brought on himself by his playing with his penis, he begins to believe them, and thence forward he comes under the influence of castration anxiety, which supplies the strongest motive force for his further development (6, p. 170)."
attachments, it plays a different role in the case of girls.

What happens in the case of the girl is almost opposite. The castration complex prepares the way for the Oedipus-complex instead of destroying it... (6, p. 176).

The meaning of the castration complex of girls is quite different from that of boys. Under the influence of the castration complex, the girl breaks her attachment to her mother, and enters the Oedipal period.

The girl remains in the Oedipus situation for an indefinite period, she only abandons it in late life, and then incompletely (6, p. 177).

With the onset of Oedipus-complex, "the initial attachment to the mother gives way to a love for father... (17, p. 38)."

Friedman (9, p. 69) explains the difference in significances of the castration complex between boys and girls as follows:

Freud postulated that the little girl turns from her mother to her father in the hope of obtaining gratification to make up for her missing organ and that, unlike the boy, the castration complex initiates oedipal strivings instead of resolving them.

Summary. According to Freud the boy's changes of preference toward his parents are influenced by the Oedipus-complex situation. Approximately up to the age of five, a boy prefers his mother to his father. The threat of castration forces him to give up this idea, and he abandons his Oedipal wishes by repressing them. As a result of this repression, he enters the latency period at about the age of six. This latency period is characterized by no preference for either parent and, finally as he enters adolescence at the age of thirteen, he starts to take an interest in the hetero-sexual objects outside of his family.

3Freud describes castration complex in the girl as follows: "The castration complex in the girl, as well, is started by the sight of the genital organs of the opposite sex. She immediately notices the difference, and--it must be admitted it's significance (6, p. 170)."

In a girl, during her first five years of life, she also favors her mother. This period is considered to be her pre-Oedipal stage. Following this stage, she enters her Oedipal stage where she prefers her father. She remains in this stage through adolescence and abandons this preference only later in her life. Even then this abandonment of "father-love" is not complete, according to Freud.

Review of Literature

Ages 3-5. Psychological literature relevant to children's attitudes toward their parents supports the view that there are sex differences in the process of development of these attitudes. In line with the Freudian theory, where pleasure sucking is associated with the mother, and hence might lead the child to prefer the mother, some investigators report that such pleasure sucking of a sexual nature occurs before the age of three in both sexes (17, p. 2; 3, p. 456; 14, p. 146; 8, p. 61).

According to Freud, the concept of object-choice, which takes place at about the five-year old level, is the determining factor of parental preference where a child prefers either his mother or his father. Horney recognizes this preference and proposes that the object-choice, and therefore, parental attitude, is a result of social environment rather than a biologically predetermined occurrence (13, p. 82). Horney also suggests that there are two reasons for this situation to exist. One is the response to sexual stimulations and caresses, and the other is clinging to one of the parents, due to the child's anxiety, since this parent gives a child reassurance and affection (13, p. 83). However, Horney does not explain the reason for choosing the opposite sex parent as suggested by Freud's theory.

Bell, as early as 1902, suggested that there are certain stages of sexual development within a child. According to Bell, the presence of the emotion of love for a heterosexual object occurs as early as three years (2, p. 330).

Pintler, Phillips, and Sears conducted a study of projective doll play of forty children (twenty boys and twenty girls, ages 3-5). Their results indicated that sex differences in children's preferences for parents in doll play existed, and a preference for the cross-sex parent was found (16, p. 80).

Ammons and Ammons (1, p. 55) used the doll technique on children between the ages of three and six, and found that girls showed significantly greater preference for their father than did boys. This finding is not in accordance with the Freudian theory of Oedipus-complex.

Woodward takes the view that there need not be any preference for either parent if baby care is provided equally by both parents (15, p. 47). By this he implies that he recognizes the existence of such a preference, but he does not explain it in terms of Freud's theory. Watson also suggests an early attachment to the mother in both sexes, with the attachment being learned (21, p. 71).

Ages 6-12. Hamilton found in his psychotherapeutic work that boys with whom he worked prefer their mother between the ages of three and seven, and that this period is followed by a period of no preference for either parent which lasts from the age of eight to twelve, inclusive (12, p. 30).

In analyzing children's compositions, Buseman (1, p. 491) found that 52 per cent of the boys (ages 10-18) mentioned their father as punisher and 33 per cent, their mother. However, in girls of the same age group, 27 per cent considered the father as a punisher and 55 per cent, the mother. It might be assumed that the "non-punishing" parent is preferred. According to Freud, this age group of boys is in the non-preference period. However, Buseman's findings in relation to girls seem to support Freud's
Simpson (18, p. 24), using a direct approach, found that when the question: "Whom do you like best at home?" was asked of 250 boys and 250 girls, between the ages of five and nine, that 41.8 per cent preferred the parent of the same sex and 49 per cent, the parent of the opposite sex. This difference was not statistically significant (18, p. 25). However, she found that of the five year olds, 33 per cent preferred the parent of the same sex, while 62 per cent preferred the opposite sex parent. This difference was statistically significant (18, p. 25). This conforms with Freud's theory to the extent that there was cross-sex preference of parents in girls at this age level.

Campbell's study, based on observations of recreational groups of boys and girls between the ages of five and seventeen, found that the period of preference for the same sex coincides with the Freudian hypothesis of the age of the latency period in boys (4, p. 549).

Adolescent phase. From his survey of psychoanalytic studies, Sears also found agreement that there is a period of no preference for either sex during the latency period (17, p. 47). Symonds carried out a study of the fantasies of adolescent children, using pictures to elicit the fantasies (19, p. 52). He states that the preference for the cross-sex parent is "expressed with unmistakable clarity in these stories (19, p. 137)." According to Freud, at this age level, the Oedipal wishes of boys should be completely repressed and that of girls should also be repressed, but not completely. This finding does not support Freud's theory in relation to adolescent boys.

Hamilton investigated childhood relationships of adult men and women with their parents. The results showed a certain degree of cross-sex parent preferences (11, p. 465).

Friedman concluded that his findings "... supported the psychoanalytic concept of the castration complex in relationship to developmental levels." He also found that "... the object attitudes of adolescent girls retain a more Oedipal character than do those of adolescent boys (9, p. 127)." This study was based on the interpretations of picture situations.

Symonds considers the Oedipal situation as playing a very important part in the rejection of a parent by a child (20, p. 44). Such rejection would probably result in a preference for the other parent.

Sears stated in his report on psychoanalytic concepts that:

The experiments and observations examined in this report stand testimony that few investigators feel free to accept Freud's statements at face value (17, p. 133).

There seems to be little agreement as to the actual age levels when the changes of preference of parents by boys and girls take place. It is also desirable to compare these changes between the male and female children at the particular age levels suggested by Freud.

The present study was carried out to help resolve some of the discrepancies between Freudian theory and the findings of other investigators.
CHAPTER II

STATEMENT OF THE PROBLEM

The problem is to investigate empirically the attitudes toward parents of children of both sexes between the ages of three and nineteen, and to determine whether the attitudes of children toward their parents change at certain ages as suggested by Freud. The relationship which might exist between the choice of a parent and the sex of a child, at different age levels also will be studied.

General Hypotheses

The following hypotheses derived from the Freudian theory of the Oedipus-complex will be investigated:

1. Ages 3-5. Both boys and girls of this age group prefer their mother.

2. Ages 6-12. The boys of this age group have no preference for either parent, while the girls prefer their father.

3. Ages 13-19. The boys of this age group have no preference for either parent, while the girls either have no preference for either parent or prefer their father.
CHAPTER III

METHODS AND PROCEDURE

The subjects interviewed in this study were males and females between the ages of three and nineteen. They were obtained from the Montana State University nursery schools, Lincoln School, Hawthorne School, Paxson School, and Missoula County High School. There were 351 boys and 324 girls. In the 3-5 age group there were 51 children; 268 were in the 6-12 age group, and 336 were in the 13-19 age group. The total number of children was 655 (Table I).

All the subjects were asked the following questions:

Tell me something about your father. Tell me some of the things he does. How much do you like your father?

Tell me something about your mother. Tell me some of the things she does. How much do you like your mother?

The investigator was introduced to the children between the ages of three and eight in class groups and they were told that he wanted to talk to them individually. Each child was then interviewed separately. Their responses to the above questions were recorded verbatim by the investigator, in writing.

In the case of the children between the ages of nine and nineteen, the writer accompanied each teacher into the classroom. He was introduced by the teacher, and the children were told that they were to write a short story for the investigator.

The order in which the two groups of questions were asked was reversed with every other child or group, in the case of the 9-19 age group. After all responses were obtained, they were recorded and arranged in random order.

Judgments of Children’s Preferences

Six unmarried judges (three men and three women) were selected to judge the responses. The ages of the three male judges were 26, 29, and 22; the women judges were 21, 21, and 23 years of age, respectively.
Directions. Preceding the judgment of the responses, the judges were given the following written directions:

You will be presented with a number of statements made in reply to the following questions:

Tell me something about your father (mother).
Tell me some of the things he (she) does.
How much do you like your father (mother)?

In comparing each numbered statement you are to judge which parent is described more favorably.

You are to indicate your judgments on your "judgment sheet". Beside each number corresponding to the number of the statement you will indicate your judgments in the following manner:

1. Write letter "M" where you judge preference is for mother.
2. Write letter "F" where you judge preference is for father.
3. Write letter "N" where you judge no preference is shown for either parent.

There is no time limit on your judgments, but you should work fairly rapidly and primarily on your first impressions.

All of the judges worked independently in one hour intervals. Between each hour they were given a ten minute break. They also were asked not to discuss what they were doing with the other judges.

The criterion for the acceptance of each response for this investigation was set as agreement on one category by four or more judges.
Four or more judges were in agreement on 499 of the responses; these responses were used in this investigation. (Appendix) The other 156 responses were considered to be ambiguous, and were not used.

Following these judgments, the responses were re-arranged by age and sex. Each of the 499 responses was then scored as either "M", "F", or "N", indicating the preference shown by each subject, as agreed upon by four or more of the judges.

Hypotheses to be tested. The following hypotheses derived from the Freudian theory of sexual development, were tested by employing the Chi Square technique (10, p. 273):

1. Boys, age 3-5: Show preference for mother.
2. Boys, age 6-12: Show no preference.
5. Girls, age 6-12: Show preference for father.
7. Boys and girls, age 3-5: There is no difference in preference between sexes, with both boys and girls showing preference for mother.
8. Boys and girls, age 6-12: There is a difference in preference between sexes, with boys showing no preference, and girls showing preference for father.
9. Boys and girls, age 12-19: There will be a difference in preference between sexes, with boys showing no preference for either parent, and girls showing a preference for father.
(10) Boys, ages 3-5 and 6-12: Boys of the 3-5 age group will show preference for mother significantly more often than the boys of the 6-12 age group.

(11) Girls, ages 3-5 and 6-12: Girls of the 3-5 age group will show preference for mother significantly more often than the girls of the 6-12 age group.
CHAPTER IV

RESULTS

The level of confidence for this investigation was set at $P = .05$. Therefore, the values of $X^2$ not meeting this level are considered not to be significant.

Since all the tables of this study have two degrees of freedom, the Chi Square ($X^2$) value of 5.991 indicates $P$ of .05.

From an analysis of the data, the following results were obtained in relation to the hypotheses set forth in Chapter III. The expected frequencies of Table II were calculated by taking one-third of the total sample, while in Tables III, IV, and V marginal totals were employed to calculate the distributions which would be expected on the basis of chance.

Boys

Age 3-5. The results obtained from the responses of the boys of this age group indicate that there is no significant preference for any category (Table II). The hypothesis

4"M" represents frequencies of rated preference for mother; "N" represents frequencies of rated no preference for either parent; and "F" represents frequencies of rated preference for father.
that boys (3-5) will show preference for their mother is rejected.

Age 6-12. The boys of this age group are judged to show no preference for either parent. Judges placed their responses in the "N" category significantly more often than either of the others (Table II). This result supports the hypothesis that these boys show no preference for either parent.

Age 13-19. It is also found that the judges rated the responses of this age group to fall into the "neutral" category. This indicates no preference for either parent (Table II).

Girls

Age 2-5. No significant preference for either parent is evident in this group, as rated by the judges (Table III). The hypothesis that these girls will prefer the "mother" category is rejected.

Age 6-12. The responses of the girls of this age group were judged to fall into the "father" and the "neutral" (no preference) category an equal number of times and significantly more often than the "mother" category (Table III). The hypothesis that the girls of this age group show preference for father is accepted, but the results do not appear to be clear cut.

Age 13-19. The judges' ratings indicate no significant preference in the girls of this age group (Table III). The hypothesis that these girls will show preference for the "father" category must be rejected.

Boys and Girls

Age 2-5. The judgments indicate no difference in parental preference between the boys and the girls of this age group (Table IV). The hypothesis that there would be no difference in the preferences between the boys and the girls of this age group is supported.

Age 6-12. The results indicate a significant difference in the preferences between the boys and the girls of this age group (Table IV). The hypothesis that boys show no preference for either parent, while girls show preference for their father in this age group and that the difference between these two choices between boys and girls will be significant, is accepted.

Age 13-19. As revealed by the judgments, no significant difference is found between the preferences of boys and girls in this age group (Table IV). It was hypothesized that a significant difference of preference between boys and girls would be found in this age group, with the girls favoring their father, and the boys not favoring either parent ("N" category). This hypothesis is rejected.

Boys, 3-5 and 6-12. The results show no significant difference between parental preference of boys, 3-5, and boys, 6-12 (Table V). The hypothesis is that a significant difference between these two age groups would be found with the boys, 3-5, showing preference for mother and the boys, 6-12, showing no preference for either parent ("N" category). This hypothesis must be rejected.

Girls, 3-5 and 6-12. The judgments indicate a significant difference between the preferences of the two age groups. The hypothesis was that there would be a significant difference in preferences between these groups, with the girls, 3-5, showing preferences for their mother, and the girls, 6-12, showing a preference for their father. The results support this hypothesis (Table V).

CHAPTER V

DISCUSSION

According to the judges' ratings, boys, 3-19, showed no preference for either parent, while girls showed no preference for either parent during the 3-5 and the 13-19 age levels. However, between the ages of 6-12, girls showed a preference for their father. These findings are not consistent with Freudian theory.

Age 3-5. There is no preference for either parent by boys or girls of this age group. This is contrary to Freud's theory, which states that children of this age group should prefer their mothers.

A possible explanation of these results in this age group based on environmental factors may be as follows:

Even though the mother provides considerable care for her children, they do not spend any more time with her than they do with their father, since all the children interviewed in this age group were in nursery school from 9:00 A.M. to 3:30 P.M. The father may play with a child in the evening more than the mother would, and that may tend to equalize the amount of attention devoted to the child by the two parents.
Age 6-12. It was found that girls of this age group indicated preference for their fathers and that boys of this age group showed no preference for either parent. This is in accordance with Freudian theory. This is the only finding which conforms with predictions based on the Oedipus-complex. Since the other hypotheses derived from Freudian theory did not hold up well, it seems in order to offer an alternative explanation for these results.

The girls' preference for father in this age group may be explained in the following manner:

Girls are expected by their mothers to share some of the household duties. Girls may resent this. It is likely that most of the restrictions and training involved in "becoming a lady" are imposed by the mother, while the father does not interfere with the mother's domestic training.

It is possible that such resentment toward mothers, coupled with the possibility that fathers treat their daughters to more affection than do mothers, may be responsible for girls' preferences of their fathers. A mother's attention to girls of this age level might be a form of "supervisory attention," while a father's attention may be "affectionate attention."

Since the girls of this age group attend school, it is also expected that through their studies they may begin to feel that it is a "man's world," National heroes, statesmen, and athletes are usually males, and it is possible that a girl identifies them with the male with whom she is most familiar—father.

The results indicated that boys of this age group showed no preference for either parent. At this age level, a boy begins to realize, through conversations he overhears and social customs, that he is groomed to become the "bread-winner." He is not bothered, to a great degree, with the unpleasant chores of a housewife and, since education emphasizes to him that it is a man's world, he identifies himself with the heroes of our times, since he himself is a male, rather than identifying with his father, as in the case of the girls.

Age 13-19. The results indicated that neither boys nor girls of this age group showed preference for either parent. They are the same as the results of the 3-5 age group, but the reasons for this lack of preference are probably different.

One explanation for boys' non-preference might be the same as the one applied to the 6-12 age group.

An explanation for the girls' change from father preference to non-preference might be that when they enter the adolescent stage (13-19) and begin to approach womanhood, they tend to identify themselves with their mothers, and thus increase their preference for their mothers to a point where the father preference is offset. Also it is possible that they direct their attention to a non-filial male instead of father. They realize that society has pre-determined, to a certain degree, that they will become housewives. They do not resent their mother's suggestions as much as they have, during the 6-12 age level, since they realize their mothers are doing what is expected of good mothers. Mother's and daughter's interests have more in common, and they may engage in shopping, sewing, cooking, and other activities which a girl realizes will be helpful to her in the future, when she must play her part as a wife.

There is no obvious reason for girls to lose preference for their father, but the above mentioned reasons may cause a more positive attitude toward their mothers, and thus bring about an equal preference for both parents.

This explanation might be as valid as Freud's, since Freud's theory is based on case histories of his patients, and not on systematically gathered data; and secondly, since Freud was working with abnormal people, the Oedipus-complex situation may be common to those individuals who need psychiatric help. Oedipus-complex might be a disorder rather than a normal occurrence, as proposed by Freud.

The writer feels that the results of this study can be explained better in terms of the above environmental factors. The influence of learning and environmental factors has been suggested by other writers.

Horney suggested that a preference for one of the
A comparison of preferences between nursery school children and the children who are with their mothers all day might provide more insight into the meaning of non-preference of the 3-5 age level.

Limitations

The following limitations must be kept in mind in interpreting results of this investigation. First, the sex of the investigator may have played a part in determining a negative or a positive attitude toward the father through identification.

Second, the parental attitudes of the six judges may have influenced their judgment of the responses.

Third, the forced choice technique, where the judges would rate each response as either "M" or "F" could possibly give more valid results, since the judges would be more critical in their ratings. The "N" category may have been used in rating responses which indicated a slight preference for one of the parents.
CHAPTER VI

SUMMARY

Purpose. The purpose of this study was to determine whether there are any differences in preferences for father or mother in relation to the age and sex of the child, as suggested by Freud's theory of Oedipus-complex.

Population. The sample for this investigation consisted of 655 children, between the ages of three and nineteen; 331 were boys, and 324 were girls. From this sample, 499 responses of boys and girls were used.

Procedure. All the children were asked the following questions:

(1) Tell me something about your father (mother).
(2) Tell me some of the things he (she) does.
(3) How much do you like your father (mother)?

Results. The following results were obtained through the application of the Chi Square technique:

(1) Boys, age group 3-5, were rated to show no significant preference for either parent.
(2) Boys, age group 6-12, were rated to show no preference for either parent.
(3) Boys, age group 13-19, were rated to show no preference for either parent.

(4) Girls, age group 3-5, were rated to show no significant preference for either parent.

(5) Girls, age group 6-12, were rated to show a preference for their father.

(6) Girls, age group 13-19, showed no significant preference for either parent.

(7) The judgments of preferences of boys' and girls' responses of the 3-5 age group revealed that there is no significant difference in the parental preferences between the boys and the girls of this age group.

(8) The comparison of judgments of preferences between the boys and the girls of the 6-12 age group showed that there is a significant difference in the parental attitudes between the sexes of this age group.

(9) No significant difference of parental preference was judged between the boys and the girls of the 13-19 age group level.

(10) The ratings indicate that the parental attitudes of the boys of the 3-5 age group did not change significantly at the 6-12 age group level.

(11) A significant difference of parental preference was judged from the 3-5 age group to the 6-12 age group of girls.
Conclusions. These results do not seem to support the Freudian theory of Oedipus-complex. The explanation of children's parental preferences is in terms of environmental factors, and it is suggested that the Oedipus-complex may not be a normal phenomenon, as was postulated by Freud.

Father—He is a fireman. Born in Iowa. I like him.

006 218. Father—My father is 51 yrs. old, has greying brown hair, blue eyes, and is fairly tall. He is a banker though he studied Pharmacy at MSU and is a registered Pharmacist. The last question is hard to answer. I guess the easiest way is to say "very much."

Mother—My mother is 5'3", brown eyes and hair. She is an efficient housekeeper, but dislikes housework. Her hobby is writing.

501 219. Mother—My mother enjoys doing a lot of housework so as to keep the house up. My mother doesn't do very many activities but she likes to go on picnics and to movies. I love my mother very much.

Father—My father is quite old. He is short and very pleasant. He smokes but does not drink. His day's job is brakeman on the R.R. He enjoys fishing a great deal and also likes to hunt. I like my father very much.

600 220. Father—My dad is about 6' tall, dark, 185 lbs., and brown eyes. He does all sorts of things around the house. I like my dad very much.

Mother—My mom is about 5'6" tall, light brown hair and hard working. She does the housework and keeps up a monstrous garden and yard. I love my mom.

051 221. Mother—Mom belongs to several organizations. She is a housewife. Like her a lot.
Father—My dad is in his late forties and a swell person. He is a service station operator. Like him a lot.

015 222. Father—He is a dependable man, supports his family without complaint. He is a contractor, by that I mean he contracts clearing usually. I like him very much, he's a good father.

Mother—She is the worrying type. She worries a lot about me. Therefore, doesn't let me do some of the things I want to. I like her a lot.

150 223. Mother—My mother is about 5'5" tall. My mother works at H. O. Bell, and I like my mother very much.

Father—My dad is tall, and he works at the State Highway Dept., and I like my dad very much.

042 224. Father—He plays cards, owns a '51 Chevrolet, is partly bald headed, 5'11" tall, green eyes. I've never really come right out and say it but I guess he's about the best dad a kid could have. He smokes Lucky Strike Cigarettes.

Mother—She does not work up town, just around the house. She does about as much as anyone could do to make our place happy. Mom never tells a big, hardly. She does smoke. I think my mom is about the best mom a kid like me could have.

Age 16

051 225. Father—My father owns a dairy. He goes to the movies once in awhile and visiting. I admire my father very much.

Mother—My mother does what any mother and housewife does. She's in Oregon now because she was sick and the doctor advised her to take a trip. I admire her very much.

510 226. Mother—She is a very nice person and she has a good sense of humor. She likes to dance a lot and she likes to go on trips. I like my mother as much as a guy can show it.

Father—He has a good sense of humor. He can be mean at times but most of the time he is pretty hearty. He is a salesman and has other occupations and he likes music. I think my father is a swell guy.

0 1 5  227. Father—He is a very kind and generous person as anybody would want to know. I think he is a average married American man. After work he comes home but many times he help up by clubs or different meetings. Very well because he sees our point on things as well as the other so we get along swell.

Mother—She stays at home the biggest part of the day working, then goes out and visits the neighbors.

5 0 1  228. Father—Age 60, weight 162, height 5'8", works on the R.R. Drinks beer, gets 12 hours sleep every night. There isn't a nicer guy in the world when he is sober.

Mother—She is 57 yrs. old, weight 140, 5'6" in height. She keeps house and takes care of my niece in the daytime and she doesn't drink.

6 0 0  229. Father—My father is in her early sixties. He is a first-aid man for the A.C.M. My father works 5½ days a week on his job.

I like my father very much. He does everything to help me.

Mother—My mother is around 50. She does only housework. I mean she has no paying job. She works at home and on our little farm.

I love my mother.

0 1 5  230. Mother—Very motherly. Hard worker.

Father—Quiet, has a horse laugh, thinks I'm an angel, hard worker. Gets along with people.

6 0 0  231. Father—He is a butcher. He drinks far too much. He makes me buy all my own clothes, and doesn't like to give me anything. He gripes like mad when I ask for something and he only has given it to me three times since I was in the sixth grade. I don't like him anywhere near as well as I do my mother.

Mother—She is a very considerate person. She will give me anything I want, providing it is reasonable and she has the money.
I think she is a very wonderful person.

Age 17

4 2 0 232. Mother--My mother is a woman. She eats, sleeps, and wears clothes. Of course I like my mother, she is very kind and considerate and is the most understanding and helpful person which I confide in. P.S.
I don't think these answers are any of your...business, but I'll answer 'em just to help you out.
Father--He is a man. Works and I like him.

6 0 0 233. Father--Well, he likes to farm but he hurt his back and so he is working in the smelter
now. He takes vacations to come to see me once in a while. He does everything he can for me so I can get an education.
I like him fairly well.
Mother--She is real nice to me and goes visiting often. She used to work in a grocery store. She gives me money whenever I need it and wants me to get an education.
She works very hard for me. I love a lot.

1 5 0 234. Mother--My mother is 36 years and has been married to dad for 20 years. She has been a housewife most of the time but is working at the nursery now. She also likes outdoor sports such as fishing, hunting and things related to these. I like my mother just as much as anyone else could like theirs.
Father--My father is 45 years old, he works at a pipe co. He likes to hunt, fish and all kinds of outdoor sports. He has did farm work, has been a mechanic, and worked in a lumber co. I like my father about as much as anyone could.

6 0 0 235. Mother--My mother is willing to do things for me, in fact, even more than my father. My mother, of course, is a housewife, but she had also done clerical work at the Missoula Mercantile Co. I like my mother because she is always a lot of fun to talk with and always on the jolly side.
Father--My father is truly a very hard worker and willing to do everything he can for me. His job is a common laborer in a sawmill; he is also very active in the Moose Lodge. I like my father very much but it was only recently we have really begun to understand one another.

Mother--My mother is a homemaker. She has a fine character and personality. She is very honest and a very good Christian. She treats my brothers, sister and I very gently but she makes us obedient also. I like my mother more than anything else in the world.

Father--He has some good character but more bad ones. He drinks a lot and he and my mother have many fights. I like him okay when he isn't mean or drinking.

Mother--She's 43 yrs. old. Getting grey hair. She works cleaning house for other women. Works hard to keep us going. She likes to play bingo a lot. Won $150.00 once. She's a good mother and I like her very much.

Father--He's 45, works for the R.R. He likes to fish but doesn't have much time to go. He's a pretty good hunter. He works hard and I like him a lot, too.

Mother--My mother also helps me with many of my problems. She has almost always let me go ahead with what I want if she thinks it is reasonable. I like her very much.
Mother--I like my mother very much. She's a housewife.

Father--I like my father very much. He's a mechanic.

Father--My father is harder to get along with than my mother, but he does many things for me like buying my car and helping me fix it. I like him very much.

Mother--My mother is very nice. She tries to help me out with most of the things I do. I like her very much and would do anything for her.

Mother--My mother does the general duties of a mother. Besides, she belongs to Mother's Clubs and is very much interested in the affairs of her children. There are no words to express my deep feeling for her but all my life I will be greatly indebted to her for what she has done for me.

Father--He is always trying to teach us the better ways of life and has always been an inspiring person to be led by. I will always stand by him in any way possible and as long as he is living I will try to please him to the best of my ability.

Age 18

Mother--I like my mother. She is a housewife.

Father--I like my father. He has his own business.

Father--My father is a man of about 61 and very active for his age. He is a very hard worker on anything he does. He won't listen to both sides of a story, regardless of what it is about. On some things he is very set in his ways. He is a carpenter by trade, and a good one, at that.

Mother--She is a woman of 51, easy to get along with, and a good personality. She is a hard worker and does her share or more. She keeps house and works besides. We like one another and get along very well.

Mother--My mother is a very nice woman who works constantly. She does the home work and takes care of the buying. I like my mother as well as father.

Father--He likes to work out of doors. He works in his garden and around the house. I like my father as well as my mother.

0 2 4 247. Father--He works for the Garden City Dairies. He does a lot of work helping the neighbors and friends. He likes to take my brother and me fishing and hunting. I like him a lot, he does all he can for us.

Mother--She does people's ironing and washing for them. She also keeps house, and cooks often at a lumber camp. I like her very much for a mother.

4 2 0 248. Mother--My mother is in her late forties. My father and mother are the same age. She stays home most of the time except for the meetings of the two clubs to which she belongs. In the summer she works for some people that raise a lot of vegetables to sell. I like her very much, and if it wasn't for her I would probably be out of school.

Father--My father is in his late forties. He spends much of his time away from home because he works for the N.P. R.R. He is a carpenter and builds bridges, stockyards, etc. I like my father very much. Although he works all week, he comes home almost every weekend that he can.

0 1 5 249. Mother--My mother is the size of my father and has a bad back. She is sick a lot. She likes to play cards, bingo. She does most of the housework.

Father--My father is small, but smart. He is an iron worker. He spends his spare time square dancing. He likes to call square and work crossword puzzles. I like my father ever much but I wish he liked sports.

0 6 0 250. Father--He is a man. He sleeps and eats like most normal people do. I like him as any normal human being does.

Mother--She is a lady. She sleeps and eats like and eats like most normal people do.
I like her the same as I do my father.

501 251. Mother—She is 45 yrs. old. About 5'7" tall, about 155 lbs. She works in a store, I like her very much.
Father—He is 50 yrs. old, about 6' tall, about 180 lbs. He owns a barber shop. I like him a lot.

150 252. Father—He is 6'2" tall, weighs 180 lbs. He wears glasses. He has a plumbing shop and is a master plumber. He likes to hunt and fish. He works in the garden each spring. I like him very much.
Mother—She is about 5'6" tall, and weighs about 135 lbs. She has dark brown hair and is fairly dark complected. She cleans house and takes care of my brother and sisters. I like her very much.

Age 19

150 253. Mother—My mother is a woman with all the usual appendages and instruments of womanhood, including the ability to get me up in the morning. I like her very much, or in the language of other people, I love her.
Father—My father is a man with all the usual appendages and instruments of manhood, including the ability to get his way. I like him very much, or in the language of other people, I love him. (Irritating, isn't it?)

150 254. Mother—Without my mother I couldn't work out the problems that confront me today. She gives me advice everyday about some problem I have. She explains to me many things I do not understand. She is very helpful to me all the time. I think a lot of my mother, and I will always come to her with my problems.
Father—My father helps me in about the same way my mother does. He is very understanding, and gives me all the advice he can. I think my father is a swell man, and I hope to grow up like him, and make a success of life.
Father—My father is a cattle rancher in the Blackfoot. My dad likes to hunt and travel. He has no particular hobby. He does like to monkey with fire arms. I like my dad and I think that he is a very smart fellow in mechanics.

Mother—My mother stays with my father and likes to hunt and travel. Her favorite hobby is to play the piano. I like my mother too. I have very swell parent.

Mother—My mother teaches me many courteous things. She always helps me with my problems. She is always understanding with me. I really love her.

Father—My father has his own business. He has many hobbies. I do not participate in many of them. He really doesn't understand me or my problems. But I do like him.

420 435. Father—I don't hardly think it is any of your business!

Mother—My mother is a very nice woman. Everyone that's around her like her very much. She's a sorta fat woman with blue eyes, black hair. She runs a rest home. I don't think you should know anything else!

411 436. Father—My father is a year younger than my mother. He does carpenter work and preaches. Whenever he's home he likes to cook so mother can do other things. I like him as a whole, but he's more strict with me than mother.

Mother—My mother is forty. She loses patience quite often, but she generally has a reason. She is just a housewife and doesn't go out much. Sometimes I don't like her when she won't let me do what I want to, but she's usually right. As a rule, I like her very much.

2 4 0 437. Mother—She works at the M & M downtown. She has charge of our house, because my father works out of town. I like my mother very much.

Father—He works out of town about 100 mi. from here and comes home on weekends. I like my father very much.

6 0 0 438. Father—He is middle-aged and has no steady job. My father will never compare to what I think of my mother, although I like him. Mother—She is a middle-aged woman who has worked to put a big family through the 12 yrs. of schooling. She does housework, gardening, takes care of animals, etc. I love my mother very much and also think I have one of the most wonderful mothers in this world.

1 4 1 439. Mother—My mother doesn't work. She helps in the garden. I love her very much.

Father—My father has a good job. He smokes a pipe. I love him very much.

1 5 0 440. Mother—My mother is 39 yrs. old. She is a housewife. Mother likes to shop and read magazines and interesting books. I love my mother very much and wouldn't give her up for the world.

Father—My father is 42 yrs. old and will be 43 the 29th of May. My father likes to fish, hunt, play card games, such as canasta, and gin rummy. I think the same thing of my father as I do mother. I wouldn't give him up for the world.

5 1 0 441. Father—My father is short, like mother, and is about 40 yrs. old. He's interested in everything my mother is. I love him just as much as my mother.

Mother--She tries to do everything she can for us kids. She likes to get out and play catch or tennis or anything like that. How much do I like her? Well, I think that's a pretty silly question. I love her very, very, much. I just don't know how to say it.

0 4 2 442. Mother--I love my mother very much. She doesn't pry into my affairs when I don't want to tell her some real personal thing. I never feel awkward when I am with mom. She always knows what to do and how to say it.

Father--I also love my father very much. He always likes to go to the same places I do. My father doesn't express his affection as much as my mother does, but I know he loves me by the way he acts and talks.

1 1 4 443. Father--My father is tall, big, and getting baldheaded. He is a plumber. He works at the A.C.M. He also does carpenter work and he built our house. I like my father very much. He is a lot of fun.

Mother--My mother is short, and plump. She is getting grayhaired. She does the housework and substitute teaching in a grade school. She is a steady Home Ec teacher. I like my mother very much.

4 2 0 444. Father--He is good-natured. He likes to hunt and take long trips. I like him as much as my mother.

Mother--My mother is tall and slim. She is 46 yrs. old. She is kind and gentle and always smiling. She likes to work outside, with plants. She reads quite a lot. I like her more than anyone else in the world.

0 0 6 445. Mother--She is a housewife and mother of our kids. She also likes to fish and likes to drive. I love my mother very much but sometimes I have reason to doubt her love for me. She is very gentle--sometimes.

Father--He works as a machinist and he also likes to work with wood. He likes to fish, hunt, and almost any other sport. I love my father very much. I think he is one of the best fathers anyone could hope for.

Age 15

411 446. Father--My father is a farmer. We have our own place. He is very nice to everyone and I love him.

Mother--My mother cares for the house and is very handy with her hands. She is leader and takes part in many clubs. I love my mother.

415 447. Father--He's a man who is interested in youngsters. He works hard at his job, and earns what he gets. He's well-liked among the clubs he belongs to. I love my father because he is nice to me and helps me with my homework.

Mother--My mother is a housewife. She is small. She belongs to too many outside organizations. I like her.

051 448. Mother--She's just a housewife. I like her very much. I have no reason to dislike her at all. She likes kids that behave.

Father--I like him very much. I have no reason to dislike either parent at all. He likes kids that behave. He is understanding.

240 449. Father--My father is a man. His name is Sarkus. He digs basements and drives truck. I like him as much as I like my mother.

Mother--My mother is a woman. She is my mother. I like her very much.

150 450. Mother--My mother is very nice. She works at home. I like her very much. She is very good to all her neighbors and friends. She is the best one there is.

Father--My father is very nice. He'll do just about anything we want. He has a good sense of humor. He is very good to us and he never punishes us real badly. He has a lot of fun with my friends.

141 451. Father--He does all kinds of things at home. I like him more than words can tell.

Mother--She works at home. She does almost anything. I like her more than words can tell.

501 452. Mother--Right now she is working at St. Patrick's Hospital. She visits quite a bit and bakes. I like my mother well.

Father--My father is quite a bit Indian and a mixture of other things. He goes to church quite a bit. He raises rabbits and chickens. He is foreman in a plainer mill. I think very much of him.

510 453. Father--He has had different jobs here, but is now working here in high school. He used to work in a sawmill, at the sugar factory and for a while he had a farm out here. I don't get along with him as well as I do my mother, but we get along.

Mother--Mother is a plain housewife. She has gone through a lot because she has raised a big family. She is in her forties and is a very nice mother to the whole family. I like her very much and get along with her well.

240 454. Mother--She is hard working and is kind to everybody. She is a housewife and helps to take care of people and when they want her to do something she is always willing to lend a hand. She is always working. I like her very much.

Father--He tries to help people as well as he can. He works at a gas station and helps people to build things. I like him very much.

600 455. Father--My father is not working because he is crippled, but he sits at home and gripes about something continually. He does not try to be the least bit understanding and I don't like him.

Mother--My mother works at Safeway's. I know she tries to be understanding but she sometimes makes me disgusted, although I think she's wonderful.

015 456. Mother--My mother is 5'4". She has brown hair and eyes. She is a marvelous cook. She is a housekeeper. I like her.

Father—My father is 5'9". He has brown eyes and hair. He is a good worker, he cleans the yard very well, burns the garbage. He is a resturant man. I like him very much.

0 1 5 457. Father—He is a very friendly man and nothing can make him mad. He works on the R.R. as a machinist helper and has been there for quite a few years. I love my father very much.

Mother—She likes to write song for a hobby. She works in a hospital. I like her very much.

4 2 0 458. Mother—My mother is 5'2", brown hair and hazel eyes. She also likes to dance to good music and have fun. I like my mother very much.

Father—He likes to dance to good music and have a good time. He works at a service station, as owner and does most all the work. I like my father very much, but am very disgusted with him when he says I can do something then changes his mind, although I do hope he lives to be a hundred.

6 0 0 459. Father—I don't like my father very well at all, because he picks on my mother and everybody else. He is an alcoholic and he's getting worse. I hate him!

Mother—I like my mother very much. She'd do anything for anybody.

0 5 1 460. Father—My father works at the mill in Bonner. In the evenings he reads the paper and listens to the radio. Sometimes he works in the evenings. I like him very much.

Mother—She works during the days and rests or helps around the house in the evenings. I like her very much, too.

0 4 2 461. Father—He is about medium height. He is strict with me and my sisters about going out at night. He goes fishing and hunting often. He smokes a pipe and smokes a cigarette once in a while. I like him very much.

Mother—She is short and rather sloppy about her clothes. She is a good cook but not a very good housekeeper. I like her very much, too.

114 462. Mother--Mom is a housewife and she works very hard sewing so I can have nice clothes to wear. She expects neither too much nor too little of me, and I honor her everyday by trying to do my best in all she asks me to do.

Father--My father is what you might call a jack-of-all-trades. He is kind to me and very considerate. He is very willing to give me most everything I want if he feels it would do me some good and he is very anxious to see me have fun and to do what the "gang" does. To me there is no better father in the world.

024 463. Father--My father is an average man of average intelligence. He treats both my brother and myself very fairly. And he hardly ever gets into arguments with any of the family. I wouldn't say that he has ever punished me or my brother when it was not necessary. I think a lot of my father and I know he thinks a lot of his family, also.

Mother--My mother doesn't work out, she has a lot of time to do things that we appreciate. She is very intelligent but never does my lessons for me. Sometimes she treats us too easy and lets us get away with almost anything.

240 464. Mother--My mother works at a hospital. She is very good to me and is always helping me. I think an awful lot of my mother.

Father--My father works in the saw mills quite a bit and does odd jobs around the house. I like my father an awful lot, too.

060 465. Father--My father is 43 yrs. old. He works as an operator of a grain elevator. An awful lot.

Mother--My mother is 42 yrs. old. She works at home and in a restaurant. An awful lot.

420 466. Mother--She stays at home taking care of the house and my brothers and sister. I like my mother more than my dad 'cause I've always been able to tell her my troubles
My father is 45 yrs. old. He is 6' tall and has dark hair and eyes. He works for a lumber co. I like my father very much although sometimes he makes me mad by the things he does. He is very understanding and patient.

He is in his fifties. He has grey hair, but he is not a bit feeble. He fishes and he likes to hike miles to find a place to fish. I have never thought how much I like him. He is always kind to me. But sometimes I don't think I am very kind to him.

She is in her forties and has grey hair. She works most of the day at her job. I am closer to her than to my father but I don't know why.

She wants me to have everything possible and so she gives me dancing lessons and etc. I like my mother very much and I don't know what I'd do without her.

My father is not as understanding as my mother in some ways. He does not see why I need so many clothes. Yet, he never says anything when I go out on dates, whereas mother has to know who they are and a lot of other things. My father probably wishes I was a boy because when I was little he used to buy me miniature tools. He is not very close to me and I like my mother best.

She waits on all the members of the family a little too much. She is trying to raise us 4 children right, but she isn't so strict, that we aren't allowed to have fun.
Father--Dad is 37 yrs. old and 5'3". He is a barber and likes horses. He likes dancing and outdoors work. He is very good to everyone and especially us children. I think the world of him.

015 471. Father--My father is a very strict man, but if it wasn't for my mother, he would not be so much. He likes to fish. If he isn't feeling well, he is very grouchy and nothing pleases him. He gripes about a lot of things, but I really love him even though he treats me as a child, too. Which I'm not.

Mother--My mother is very set in her ways. She lives only for herself and nobody's will but her's goes. In plain words, she treats me as a child. She talks about other people holding the telephone for an hour and a half. She is very two-faced.

114 472. Mother--She is working right now. She is real swell to all of us kids and I like her fine. She never drinks, smokes, or anything like that.

Father--He works, and is active in the Moose and the drum and bugle corps. He never drinks or smokes, and he tries to provide everything he can for all of us kids. There is no finer person anywhere.

006 473. Mother--I don't like my mother.
Father--I like my father.

024 474. Mother--My mother works. I love my mother although we have many heated arguments and get very mad at each other.
Father--My father works. I do love him much.

006 475. Father--He's tall and a lot of fun. He rides in rodeos when mom doesn't yell. Raises purebred Hereford cattle and saws for the A.C.M. I like my father quite a lot.
Mother--I like mother better than most kids do, but don't like to have her try to run my life as well as her own.

510 476. Mother--My mother is a silk finisher at a local cleaner. She works very hard to support us. I think a great deal of my mother.

Father--My father works in a tavern downtown. I don't know what I think about my father. He has never done anything especially for us, but I still think he's alright.

150 477. Father--He is a man who has worked hard for a better life here in the U.S. and knows the value of his opportunities. My parents, one as much as the other, have my deepest love.

Mother--She is a likable person who has many friends and there is no one at present who has more affection and love from me than do my parents.

105 478. Mother--My mother is a housewife and lives with my dad, my two sisters, and me. I like her.

Father--My father is a man. He works like any normal man does. The things he does are work, eat, sleep, read, and goes to a show with my mother. He is better than any man I know or have ever seen.

024 479. Mother--She works around the house and does different things for my wearing apparel. I like my mother very much as she is very good to me and no harsh words are spoken.

Father--My father is 5'11", is light-complexed and has blonde hair. He weights 195 lbs. He is president of the Local Union 2812 for the White Pine and he is handy in the garden. I like him very much because we understand each other.

051 480. Mother--She takes care of us kids and washes clothes, does dishes, cooks and many more things. I love my mother very much and we get along fine.

Father--Anybody can get along with my father. He has dark eyes and hair. He works at a sawmill, he runs it. I love my father very much and we get along fine.

051 481. Father--My father works for the N.P. R.R. He breaks horses and loves working around animals of any kind. He spends some time making things for little kids, like sleds, wagons, swings, and many other things. I love my father very much.

Mother--My mother is a housewife. She also sews for my sister and brother. This she likes to do also. She is always happy and laughing. I love her very much, also.

141462. Mother--My mother is a housewife, she is 42 yrs.
old, and is very short. She likes all kinds of sports. I like my mother but she loses her temper too often and gets mad at me for very little.

Father--My father is a salesman and he works for Frigidare. He is 41 yrs. old. He likes all sports and likes his work. I like my father very much when he isn't mad.

Age 17

600483. Mother--My mother is just a housewife. I love my mother more than anyone or anything in the world.

Father--My father is an author. He I love my dad.

402484. Father--My father is a very nice person, who is really wonderful. My father is the proprietor of a business down town. I like my father very much.

Mother--My mother is a housewife and does a wonderful job of keeping the house and family in order. I like my mother very much, because she helps in telling me the right and wrong of things. She is also very nice to me.

141485. Mother--My mother sometimes does substitute teaching, although not all the time. She is Den Mother for a pack of Cub Scouts and active in P.T.A. I love my mother very much!

Father--My father is principal out at Bonner.
He's first vice-president of Montana Fish and Game. I don't like my dad--I love him! He's the swellest guy I've met!

006486. Father--My father is 64. He is a maintenance man in a privately owned building. He is often unemployed because of his dislike for work. I love him.
Mother—She and I are not very close since she always sticks by my father and never with any of her children. I can't say that I love her.

Mother—Mother does our washing, ironing, cooking, etc. She is always around to help me whenever I need help. She does all the housework and dishwashing, which I do very little. I love her.

Father—My father is a lumbergrader at the A.C.M. mill at Bonner. Since I am now the only child left in the family, he usually allows me to get whatever I want. He is very generous and naturally, because he is my father, I love him very much.

Father—My dad is 5'11" tall, has brown hair and has a nice way about him and is quite easy to get along with. He owns the Front Street Taxi Serv. Station, located on Front and Orange. He likes to ride horseback and enjoys other outdoor things. I like my father very much.

Mother—My mother is short, has brown hair and a very nice way about her. She also likes to ride horseback and work in the yard. I like my mother very much.

Mother—She hasn't a job, except housework, which is enough work to anyone. She belongs to League of Women Voters, and is active in her Sorority alumni. I like her very much.

Father—My dad works hard for us kids so we won't have the hard time he did to get an education and a job. He is very interested in hunting, fishing, and trap shooting. I respect him very much.

Age 18

Mother—She is a housekeeper. I like her okay.
Father—He works. I like him okay, too.

Mother—She's okay, I guess, but she is always wanting to wear my clothes which I do not like her to wear.
Father—He works at the lumbermill and I like him very much.
1 5 0 492. Father—My father is a sawyer. He built the house we now live in. He reads the daily paper when he comes home from work like most other fathers. He is a good supporter and is wonderful to us kids. I like my father a lot. I wouldn't know what I'd do if I lost him. He is easy to talk to. He means the world to me.

Mother—My mother is a housewife. She irons, cooks, and does many of the same things every other housewife would do. I like my mother very much. More than I can ever say. If something should happen to her I don't know what I'd do. She means the world to me.

6 0 0 493. Mother—My mother is housewife with 3 children. She is very understanding and you can take your troubles to her and she will help you with them. Mom does most of the housework and takes care of my 3 yrs. old sister. My mother is the most wonderful person on this earth. She will help me in any way that she can and I would do anything for my mother.

Father—My dad works as a plumber on the R.R. and also owns an apartment house plus three other houses. My dad works out of town most of the week and is home on weekends. He usually works on the house or yard on weekends. My dad is very good to us, only he shows partiality to us girls which I don't think is fair. Outside of this one fact my dad is a wonderful person. He has consideration of everyone in the family.

5 1 0 494. Mother—She has a hyrnea which requires an operation, approximately every year. She is much shorter than I. She works, teaching at the U. kindergarten, but has been a janitor of a school for many yrs. You can't measure love.

Father—He is a wonderful musician but can't cook worth a darn. He received a PhD in Organic Chemistry and worked in a DuPont lab. for many years. Now he is a janitor of a school.

4 2 0 495. Father—My father works as wholesale druggist. In his spare time he likes to hunt, fish, and work in the soil. I like my father as much as anyone could possibly like their father.

Mother—My mother is a housewife, and plays the organ in church on Sunday. My mother is very dear to me. As to how much I like her, it is boundless.

Age 19

1 5 0 496. Mother—My mother is just a housewife. She thinks and does lots for her family. I think the world of her and would be lost without her. She has made our homelife very happy.

Father—My father is a carpenter. He has built our house and made our place look like something. I think the world of him and would also be lost without him.

6 0 0 497. Father—My dad works in the timber and he drives a truck out by Lolo. My father was mean to mother. I don't like him because he hit mom.

Mother—My mother works at the Missoula Laundry. I like my mother real well.

0 6 0 498. Mother—She's home all the time. I like her.

Father—He works in town. I like him. I think these are crazy questions.
